

I plan to make a simple maze game for my website. The structure of the maze will be made with html and css, while the player movement will be done in javascript. Since the website is supposed to consist of 5 tabs, I'll have mine include a home page, about the game page, the main game, about me page, and a frequently asked questions page.

The maze will have a special feature of a jumpscare whenever the player comes in contact with any of the walls. Reaching the end of the maze will also show a rickroll just for fun.